

Fleming, C      7 Contact Report of meeting 16 Feb 1962

14. GRAUBERT - Incident Involving GIBROVSKY and GIBROVSKY. Fleming related a strange incident that had gone to light, which possibly had been an attempt on the part of GIBROVSKY and GIBROVSKY to kidnap GRAUBERT in West Berlin. In early 1960, under rather involved circumstances, GRAUBERT was riding in a car (after dark) driven by GIBROVSKY and talking over some ops problems with GIBROVSKY. At one point the car approached to a halt and a policeman put his head in the window and said he just wanted to alert them to the fact they were about to enter East Berlin. GIBROVSKY and GIBROVSKY expressed astonishment that this was the case and, with much comment about that an awful thing almost had happened, turned the car around. GRAUBERT assumed it had been an honest mistake and thought nothing more about it. He recalled the incident succinctly and vividly and reported it after hearing that GIBROVSKY and GIBROVSKY had been arrested as Soviet agents. FLEMING said that after GRAUBERT had reported the incident, a check had been made and it had been determined that about one week before the incident GIBROVSKY had checked someone in GIBROVSKY to get GRAUBERT's home address in Berlin. It also was determined that he earlier had pulled a personal file on GRAUBERT. GIBROVSKY said that the possibility of kidnapping was being checked further and that he personally was convinced that it had been a kidnapping attempt. There was further discussion of the reports that made such an attempt improbable (flat in plain), why GRAUBERT, etc. GIBROVSKY claimed he still felt certain the incident had represented a kidnapping attempt and added that it was reasonably probable it would be established, it might be possible to give GIBROVSKY substantially more than 25 years. C      7 said if there had been any investigation in the incident, GIBROVSKY said no. C      7 said that although it was improbable that GIBROVSKY would want anything badly, it was possible that GIBROVSKY would. GIBROVSKY said he was not sure if he was out on this one would say any about the kidnapping. It is interesting to note that in early 1960 at GIBROVSKY's interrogation, he stated that (in early 1961) he received a strange query from GIBROVSKY on GRAUBERT, strange in that it gave GRAUBERT's private name, address, and address. GIBROVSKY made the point by way of illustrating his conviction that the FBI had a source in the German Del. Involving GIBROVSKY's matters; GIBROVSKY presumably was pointing this point by way of indicating that not all that GIBROVSKY had been compromised in the GIBROVSKY line had been compromised by GIBROVSKY.
